Location & Description of Work

Mobilized to the site with Jorden Zarders, biologist in charge of taking inventory of insects and plants at the observatory.

At the site, the team met Wallace Ishibashi, from University of Hawaii, and Bill Johnson, who is in charge of dismantling the telescope and electronic equipment inside the observatory. Obtained CMS sticker for hard hat from Mr. Ishibashi.

Jorden Zarders installed 10 traps for ants and 10 traps for spiders. Ant traps were retrieved within one hour. Spider traps will be retrieved on Monday. Jorden also walked transects around the site looking for insects and plants. The results of the survey will be provided in a biological survey report from the biologist.

Team demobilized for the day with no incidents.
